
Course Planning

HSD high schools use the online platform, Xello, to assist students in creating their four-year high school plans. As a guidance tool prior to the course selection process, students build their own course plans in order to create a sense of ownership over their paths through high school, and to ensure they are working toward meeting their post-secondary goals. Counselors and families can view student plans and provide informed suggestions and encouragement. This allows families to take a larger role in their student's future planning process.
